

GREYLAG ONLY FAVORITE TO WIN AT BELMONT

Stromboli Flashes Old Class, Wins Galloping Comes Out of Retirement and Runs Away
With Third Race—Form Players Have Tough Time at Big Course.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Great game, this racing. Up and down—mostly down. Horses look good nowhere when honorable judges squint their eagle eyes. Take today at Belmont, for instance. Did favorites prance nobly over pay-off line? Did they? We'll answer question. They didn't. One did. Grey Lag was that magnificent horse. Good horse, Grey Lag. Other favorites very camembert. Mammoth course and all that. No nourishment in magnitude. Favorites must come home first, or new body of players must be created.

Off hollering stuff for once. Dwell on sentiment. Seldom found at a track. Was in evidence when Stromboli cantered first past post with Sam's own colors. Mention this as sentiment is as scarce as trees on iceberg. Track a genuine iceberg. Ask 'em all. They know. Sander kicked Stromboli home. Did same stunt with Grey Lag, and Mainmast in the final. Seventeen horses trying to get out. Smart folks pinned faith on Sander. He came through as hoped. Trains brought home saddened players. Great game, horse racing. If favorites act kindly.

Brideman finished third, behind Fair Gain. That started much moaning. Brideman played down to 4 to 5, but wasn't there with necessary speed. Stromboli opened at 13 to 5. Good as 4 to 1 at post time. Sam Hildreth knew his pet worked good, but was afraid to wager. Smart folks took this angle and kicked themselves after race. Sam was just as happy when Stromboli won as if he'd won big wager. Sam's very solemn and hides his feelings. Just the same wouldn't give Stromboli for all horses racing.

Some time ago Sam had Stromboli down in Kentucky. Old favorites starting choking, and looked as if ready to fade off mundane sphere. Sam called in best veterinary possible. Vet cut gas in Stromboli's throat, and great runner began to breathe. Hildreth so tickled he offered veterinary $500, but latter waved it away.

Sam would have paid ten times that sum to save his favorite. So you can imagine his delight when Stromboli cantered first past post with Sam's own colors. Mention this as sentiment is as scarce as trees on iceberg. Track a genuine iceberg. Ask 'em all. They know. Sander kicked Stromboli home. Did same stunt with Grey Lag, and Mainmast in the final. Seventeen horses trying to get out. Smart folks pinned faith on Sander. He came through as hoped. Trains brought home saddened players. Great game, horse racing. If favorites act kindly.
